Design-Build Bill. Bill passed both houses and was signed by the Governor on April 13. The CPARB must develop guidelines to be used by the review committee for review and approval of design-build demonstration projects that include procurement of operations and maintenance services. In turn, the review committee may authorize two design-build demonstration projects that include operations and maintenance services for a period of longer than three years. The review committee may approve up to 10 demonstration projects using the design-build process for projects with a total project cost between $2 and $10 million. Public bodies certified to use design-build must seek approval from the review committee for these projects. The review committee must report to the CPARB on recommendations for continued use of the design-build procedure for projects estimated under $10 million. Changes are made to clarify that public bodies seeking certification for the design-build procedure must demonstrate successful management of at least one design-build project within the previous five years, and those seeking certification for the GCCM process must demonstrate successful management of at least one GCCM project within the previous five years. Honorarium payments for design-build projects are made to the finalists submitting responsive proposals rather than those submitting a "best and final" proposal. Sealed bids on final proposals for the GCCM projects must be opened and read in public and all previous scoring must be made available to the public. The GA, the UW, and WSU may issue job order contract work orders for the state regional universities and The Evergreen State College. *Requested by the Capital Projects Advisory Review Board (CPARG); Scheduled for public hearing in the House Committee on State Government & Tribal Affairs at 1:30 PM on January 23, 2009. Public Works Retainage Bill has passed the Legislature and has been signed into law by the governor. Obsolete references relating to retainage of funds on public works contracts entered into prior to September 1, 1992, are removed. Statutes related to timely payment of interest on unpaid public contracts; public works retainage; excess over lien claims to contractor; and duties of the disbursing officer upon final acceptance of contract are each repealed. In most instances, the general contractor on a public works project is required to post a performance bond to faithfully perform all work under the contract and to pay laborers, material suppliers, and subcontractors. Also, in most instances, a retainage of up to 5 percent of the contract amount is required on public works contracts to be paid to the contractors 45 days after the completion of the project. The amount serves as a trust fund for payment of laborers, subcontractors, material suppliers, and excise taxes that are imposed on the contract. *Public hearing in the House Committee on State Government & Tribal Affairs at 1:30 PM on January 23, 2009. House-Senate Compromise Capital Construction Budget Capital budget passed the Legislature and signed by the governor - Partial Veto - A biennial state capital budget authorizing $196.8 million in WSU construction has been signed into law by Gov. to both design and construct the $96 million Veterinary Medical Research Building on the Pullman campus. That means construction on this building could begin as early as 2011. Provides state general bonding authority to pre-design and design for the Riverpoint Biomedical & Health Sciences at $4.34 million. Funds Minor Capital Preservation and Program for a total of $45.16 million. The budget also provides $6.2 million of the $10 million match required to construct the $35 million Global Animal Health Building, Phase I, on the Pullman campus. This budget uses an unusual amount of funding related to "Certificates of Participation" or institutional bonding authority to retire debt on buildings with student fee or trust land endowment income. This funding method was used for $10 million of the Vancouver Applied Technology building construction; 95.78 million for the Veterinary Medical Research Building (WSU's 2nd highest priority) and $6.2 toward the Global Animal Health, Phase I. The bill provides authorization for $198.6 million to WSU in building construction and minor works projects. Of that, $54.2 million is bonded through the state general fund. The only major change Gregoire made to the Legislature-passed budget was a veto of requirements that the Washington State Arts Commission purchase artwork displayed in state agencies, schools and universities only from artists living in Washington state. Gregoire said the requirement could have a negative impact on Washington artists who sell to out-of-state customers. Student Financial Aid/Opportunity Grants Bill has passed the Legislature and the bill has been signed into law by the governor. The governor has vetoed part of the bill. The governor vetoed Section 11 of the bill because she said it duplicates changes to the State Work Study program made in another bill, SB 5044. The governor agreed with the policy, but as it had already been amended, there is no need for this section. Click here to Read Partial Veto Message

E2SHB Requires institutions and the Higher Education Coordinating Board to label all forms of student financial assistance as an Opportunity Grant. Phases out the Educational Opportunity Grant over a two-year period. Creates a new grant, within the State Need Grant program, which provides grants for place-bound students who have earned an associate degree. Allows institutions to use institutional aid monies for students enrolled in dual credit programs. Caps eligibility for the State Work Study program for nonresident students at 15 percent. Creates a competitive grant process within the State Work Study program to encourage more placements in high demand fields. Creates the Higher Education Loan Program (HELP) to be administered by the Higher Education Coordinating Board. Creates the HELP Account in the custody of the State Treasurer and provides criteria under which loans may be made. WSU estimates the cost to implement this bill at approximately $18,000 for training/staff development ($500), reprogramming existing systems ($2500), redesign of billing statements / award letters ($10,000), portal and web development to describe and clarify 'opportunity grants' ($1000), incorporating 'opportunity grant' language into promotional material ($3000), coordination with HECB to develop outreach tools ($1000). These costs assume training will primarily occur via webinar or email dissemination of information. Off site training is assumed to be in Spokane. Reprogramming costs relate primarily to consolidating the EOG program with SNG, and include developing policies and procedures for dually enrolled students who may qualify for aid under this bill. Coordination with HECB assumes 2 airfares for one trip to Olympia. If more frequent meetings are required the cost would increase. HCA Eligibility Bill Bill has passed both houses of the Legislature and was signed by the governor. Last year, the Health Care Authority asked WSU to change the rules on eligibility for benefits from working half-time or more per month for six consecutive months to an average of 80 hours per month for six consecutive months. WSU made that change and that eligibility requirement will now be codified in law as part of Engrossed Substitute House Bill 2245. Early drafts of the bill would have lowered eligibility to an average of 70 hours per month for six consecutive months which would have a considerable negative fiscal impact for higher education institutions. Given the budget situation, the legislature decided not to lower the eligibility requirement in this final bill, so everything is generally left unchanged from WSU's current practice. The 80-hour standard was adopted in a House amendment requested by the public four-year baccalaureate institutions for eligible employees. Previous drafts used 70 hours or left the issue up to the Public Employees Benefits Board. The House amendment will avoid a cost to WSU of $2.2 million next biennium. *Public hearing in the House Committee on Ways & Means at 1:30 PM on February 24, 2009.
